Orthopedic Rehabilitation Program

Rusk Rehabilitation Center provides an extensive and comprehensive rehabilitation program, keeping pace with a wide range of orthopedic injuries and disabilities including amputations, joint replacements, neck and lower back disorders and other orthopedic complications. Each patient receives an individualized and specialized rehabilitation plan. Our interdisciplinary team of rehabilitation professionals targets the patient's specific needs and formulates strategies to help him or her return to maximum function.

Therapeutic Objectives

- Identify the patient's functional deficits
- Validate rehabilitation objectives based on the patient's goals and evaluate findings
- Develop a comprehensive treatment plan
- Provide continuous evaluation, adjusting the program accordingly

Interdisciplinary Team

Rusk Rehabilitation Center has assembled a team of rehabilitation professionals with the ability to target specific needs and formulate strategies to maximize each patient's function. The team includes:

- Physiatrist
- Physical therapist
- Occupational therapist
- Rehabilitation nurse
- Case manager

Special Features

- Family support and education
- State-of-the-art equipment
- Inpatient, day treatment and outpatient programs

Admission

Patients are accepted to the Orthopedic Rehabilitation Program at Rusk Rehabilitation Center by physician referral, and services are provided without regard to the patient's age, sex, color, race, national origin, creed, or disability. All patients must be medically stable and will be evaluated to determine the appropriate treatment program.
